To Whom It May Concern:

We at Heidi's House have had the opportunity to play the game Pole-to-Pole. This game has proved to be exceptionally popular with the children and their eagerness to play it has shown it is an exciting and captivating game.

Although the children at our school are young, ranging between 2 and 6 years old, they have still been able to enjoy the benefits of this wonderful game. Proving that this game can be adapted to suit your child's physical and intellectual development.

The game comes with a simple set of instructions providing the user with a basis to begin with. The older children I found enjoyed making new rules and many creative ideas resulted.

An individual can use the equipment in order to practise their skills or it can be used by a number of players. The time spent with family and friends playing this game is filled with fun and very amusing moments. This game is just what one needs to get friends and family outdoors enjoying time together.

From a teachers point of view it allows for the development of fine and gross motor skills, children's general knowledge is expanded and it gives them a chance to explore their creative side. All parts of the game are child friendly and durable.

It is a game that I would personally highly recommend to family, friends and schools. The values of this game seem to be endless.

Yours sincerely
